Program Overview

You have strong, high performing individual contributors that may be key to the future of your organization. This MHEI program is valuable for those who show an interest and potential in moving into a formal leadership role. The Emerging Leaders session will explore key leadership competencies needed for success in the areas of communication, change, teamwork and collaboration. An important benefit of this program will be the participant discovering if they are ready to take the next step in their career.

Program Objectives

1. Identify key strategies in successfully managing the transition from staff member to a leadership role.
2. Define their communication and behavioral style.
3. Explore key leadership competencies that positively impact change, teamwork and collaboration.
